

Your responses suggest that you are within the timeframe when a claim may be lodged.

60 When to claim

A claim for parental leave pay must be made in the period that:

- (a) starts on the day that is 97 days before the expected date of birth of the child; and
- (b) ends on the day before the child's first birthday.

275 How this Act applies to an adopted child

- (1) This Act applies in relation to an adopted child that satisfies the requirements of subsection (2) as if:
  - (a) a reference to the birth of a child were a reference to the placement of the child; and
  - (b) a reference to the day the child was born were a reference to the day the child becomes entrusted to the care of a person as mentioned in subsection (2); and
  - (c) a reference to the expected date of birth of the child were a reference to the day expected to be the day the child will become entrusted to the care of a person as mentioned in subsection (2); and
  - (d) a reference to a child's first birthday were a reference to the first anniversary of the day the child became entrusted to the care of a person as mentioned in subsection (2); and
  - (e) a reference to a completed birth verification form for a child were a reference to information required by the Secretary about the adoption of the child; and
  - (f) a reference to a child being born during the same multiple birth were a reference to the child being adopted during the same multiple adoption.