

Your responses suggest that your transfer is not a valid transfer of employment. Therefore, there is a discontinuation of your leave entitlement with the transfer. Your answers suggest that you may be entitled to any period of untaken annual leave from your first employer.

90 Payment for annual leave

- (2) If, when the employment of an employee ends, the employee has a period of untaken paid annual leave, the employer must pay the employee the amount that would have been payable to the employee had the employee taken that period of leave.

You may calculate your approximate entitlement of annual leave at the FWO website: <https://calculate.fairwork.gov.au/Leave/Calculate>