

Your answers suggest that you are no longer eligible to claim PPL. Your eligibility eventually will be determined by the Secretary, so this is just a preliminary general test. For a detailed self-assessment, you may also visit <https://www.servicesaustralia.gov.au/individuals/services/centrelink/parental-leave-pay/who-can-get-it/meeting-work-test>.

31 When a person is eligible for parental leave pay

- (1) This section sets out when a person is eligible for parental leave pay for a child on a day.

- (4) Third, a person is eligible for parental leave pay for a child on a day if, on that day:
 - (a) if the person is the primary claimant:
 - (i) the person satisfies the work test (see Division 3); and
 - (ii) the person satisfies the income test (see Division 4); and
 - (iii) the person satisfies the Australian residency test (see Division 5); and
 - (iv) the person satisfies the conditions prescribed by the PPL rules; and