

Your responses suggest that you don't meet the prerequisites, so your employer has no obligation to offer you a permanent full-time or part-time position.

Subdivision B—Employer offers for casual conversion

66B Employer offers

- (1) Subject to section 66C, an employer must make an offer to a casual employee under this section if:
- (a) the employee has been employed by the employer for a period of 12 months beginning the day the employment started; and
 - (b) during at least the last 6 months of that period, the employee has worked a regular pattern of hours on an ongoing basis which, without significant adjustment, the employee could continue to work as a full-time employee or a part-time employee (as the case may be).

Note: An employee who meets the requirements of paragraphs (a) and (b) would also be a regular casual employee because the employee has been employed by the employer on a regular and systematic basis.

Subdivision C—Residual right to request casual conversion

66F Employee requests

Note: Nothing in this Subdivision prevents an employee from requesting to convert to full-time or part-time employment outside the provisions of this Division, or prevents an employer from granting such a request.
