

Your responses suggest that another determination will be made for you only in exceptional circumstances.

(Paid Parental Leave Act 2010)

21 Parental leave pay is already payable to the person etc.

- (1) The Secretary must not make a payability determination that parental leave pay is payable to a person for a child if:
 - (a) there is in force another payability determination that parental leave pay is payable to the person for the child, in respect of a different claim made by the person; or
 - (b) if the person is the primary claimant—there is in force a payability determination that parental leave pay is payable to:
 - (i) the person's partner for the child; or
 - (ii) the person's former partner (when he or she was the person's partner) for the child; or
 - (c) if the person is the secondary claimant—there is in force a payability determination that parental leave pay is payable to:
 - (i) the person's partner for the child (other than as the primary claimant to which the person's secondary claim relates); or
 - (ii) the person's former partner (when he or she was the person's partner) for the child (other than as the primary claimant to which the person's secondary claim relates).
- (2) Subsection (1) does not apply to a claim that is made in exceptional circumstances.